COURSE OVERVIEW

FINTECH
SERIES

RHT

This course leans heavily on the impact of how FinTech technologies have disrupted the financial industry. It gives an overview on the evolution of the financial landscape origin of regulations, central bank, and financial institutions. Big data, blockchain, decentralized finance (Defi), etc. are all covered in detail.

But what sets this apart from other programmes are:

- Entrepreneurial and practitioner's perspectives on the fintech revolution
- Develop a Fintech business project across a duration of 5 modules to be the aspiring business for fundraising
- Case Studies across the rise and falls of various organizations: Tencent, Ant Financials, Grab/Gojek/Uber, Sygnum Bank, Meliuz, FTX
- Guest Speakers (Practitioners) who had successfully established companies like Singapore Digital Assets Exchange, and Air Carbon Exchange, speakers from the University of Oxford, and Digital Associations

WHO SHOULD ATTEND ?

Highly recommended for professionals, financiers, technologists, lawyers, aspiring entrepreneurs & business owners.

THE COURSE WILL PROVIDE ANSWERS TO:

- What resulted the disruption in a regulated industries?
- How could small fintech startups disrupt the big banks which were too “big to fail”?
- What are the innovative technologies which one can leverage?
- How can an entrepreneur develop a business model based on the disruption?
- Will cryptocurrency work? How can one launch an initial coin offering?
- Has Fintech failed in its promise? What is next after the collapse of FTX, Terre UST and Luna coins?
- Where are the entrepreneurial and business opportunities?

These are topics that aren't usually covered in most courses in the Singapore market. .

Emerging markets (especially Asia) gets an entire module of their own. The fact is that EMs have been over performing when it comes to FinTech adoption and there are lessons here that need to be learned by the more mature economic markets.

Decentralized Financing (DeFi) is also a big area of focus with a deep dive into its current form, future potential, difficulties and compliance implications.
